Harvest is Under Way

Harvesting is the order of the day. Binders, combines, swathers & threshers are running or will be running by the time this is printed. Hot weather is bringing the grain to maturity rapidly and farmers are losing no time in getting it down, either cut with the binder, swather or combined and binned.

Machine men have had an unprecedented rush on combines and binders. Many farmers who thought they were all set for the harvest, have decided that the old machines are too risky and are taking out new binders and combines to care for the wheat. One farmer with a practically new combine purchased a new power binder last week, deciding to get the grain in stacks and let it harden there for fear hail might take it as it did in Macleod through to Foremost last Sunday. The one man combine has proven very popular and local dealers have sold this type of machine as fast as they could get it.

Beets are coming along well and outside of the area in and around Picture Butte that was hailed last Sunday, fields in all the other districts are doing fine and promise a big yield. It is probable that hailed fields may be reduced some in the yield, although there will still be a good beet harvest as the beets were far enough advanced that while they will be damaged some they will not be ruined by any means.

HAIL HITS FROM MACLEOD TO FOREMOST

Sunday afternoon between 5 p.m. and 6:30 a hail storm travelled east from near Macleod right through to Foremost, riddling grain fields in its path, some districts rather lightly and others completely wiping out the beautiful stands of grain, just ready for harvesting and causing millions of dollars of loss to farmers who have been waiting for six years or more for just such a harvest as was standing in these fields before the storm.

The storm was about three miles wide, travelling south and east and crops and gardens in its path suffering from the stones which in many places were as large as hen's eggs. Al Barnwell the melon crop was ruined, and it is feared the corn and cucumbers and tomatoes, now at their best will be entirely ruined.

Robin Hood, which played at the Capitol the first of the week was well patronized and was a very fine picture both from a historical and pictorial standpoint.

TOWN TALK

In our previous issue we intimated that more news would be forthcoming regarding our swimming regala. There has been much excitement around the swimming pool lately. The ropes have been taken out much to the joy of the swimmers who are practicing for the coming regala.

Swimming seems to be the topic among our young boys and girls even the older people seem to have the fever. Some of them held a miniature gala in the pool and there was quite a crowd and a lot of excitement was caused. Races were held and Bill Fairbanks proved to be the winner. John Allen a close second with Fritz Dahl and J. L. Gibb following in the line. Bill seemed to have the advantage over the others with his long arm reach. We would like to challenge these men to a relay on the 17th of August I am sure we could guarantee them plenty of thrills. How about it boys? Lee Brewerton tells us that he will be there with his camera to take movies in technical. It will be quite a thrill to see ourselves in the movies especially for our swimmers. The medals that were ordered are here and are on display. They truly make a fine showing and any boy or girl may be quite proud to wear one.

We feel proud to think that the Rotary are behind this movement.

M. I. A. Workers

An Institute for all M. I. A. workers will be held in Raymond Friday and Saturday evenings of next week, August 12 and 13. Barton K. Farnsworth, Salt Lake City, will be in charge.

NEWS NOTES

King Motors report a very good business in trucks, both new and used. The new ones are going out almost as fast as they can get them in.

Willford Shields of New Dayton was in Raymond Thursday. Will Fisher who is assisting at the Shields farm during harvest was also with him.

RUSH FOR ALBERTA TOURIST BOOKLETS

Big demand for tourist booklets is reported by officials of the Alberta trade and industry department.

Some 20,000 of these booklets were printed for distribution this year to various travel agencies, motor clubs, and other organizations in Canada and the United States, while copies also were sent overseas to England, Denmark, France and other countries.

In some cases, applications have been received for additional copies, while there has been high commendation from tourist authorities concerning the general make-up of the booklet and the quality of its material.

The booklets contain full information concerning Alberta's holiday spots, tourist resorts, highways, parks, fishing centres and regulations and much other material sought by the vacationist.

Importance of making a strong bid for tourist traffic is emphasized by officials of the Alberta Motor Association, who point out that Alberta is in an enviable position to attract much "cash" trade, with its unsurpassed mountain and other scenery.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Hicks

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Susan B. Hicks, 86, were held in the Stake House on Sunday last, with Bishop J. O. Hicken in charge. The choir, directed by W. W. McMullin, with Roy Stone at the organ furnished the singing. There was a beautiful profusion of flowers and a large congregation gathered to pay their respects to this pioneer lady who was amongst Raymond's first citizens.

The opening song was "Sweet Hour of Prayer" and the invocation was offered by Patriarch O. H. Snow followed by "Till We Meet Again" and "Till We Meet Again". Mrs. O. H. Snow then sang "Sometime We'll Understand" the choir singing in the chorus.

Elder C. E. Alfred was the first speaker. He had known the family for 35 years and had always admired the faith and integrity of deceased. She had emigrated from Switzerland when a young girl, and later as a widow to Canada. Of late years her health had prevented her from doing much, and before her passing, life had become quite burdensome and he felt she had welcomed death and the relief that had come with it.

Mrs. Harding Brewerton sang the solo in "I Have Read of a Beautiful City" the choir assisting in the chorus.

T. O. King had always admired the ambition of deceased and her love of home. From early spring until winter's frosts she had always taken a great interest in beautifying her home and surroundings, and her lovely flowers were a source of joy to all who visited her home. Her devotion to the Church had always been an inspiration to him.

"Mid Scenes of Confusion" was sung, a verse by each of four singers, the choir taking part in the chorus.

Elder H. S. Allen paid tribute to the devotion of deceased to the Church, who though even a widow had financed her three sons while on missions for the Church and for 48 years, since her husband died, had given her life to her family and her Church. The speaker also spoke of pre-existence and the necessity of us laboring diligently here if we expected any reward after death.

Bishop Hicken thanked all who had assisted in any way for their kindness to the family in their sorrow.

The closing song was "Rest Now from Care and Sorrow" and the benediction was pronounced by Elder I. R. Roberts.

A large cortege followed the remains to the cemetery where Christensen Brothers had charge of interment.

Deceased is survived by three sons, Joseph and Frank of Raymond and Roy of Lehi Utah; and a daughter Mrs. Rose H. Hamblin, of Kanab, Utah; two brothers Charles H. and Gottlieb Buhler of Pleasant Grove, Utah; and a sister Mrs. Caroline Curze, Montpelier, Idaho.

Machine men are selling binders, both horse and power, and combining just about as fast as they can get them in and set up. The heavy grain is demanding good machinery to handle it.

The Home Bakery added to its equipment this week, when a slicer was installed. This machine cuts through a loaf of bread in a second or two, and the uniformity of the slices would be the envy of any housewife. Congratulations Alvin on the improvement.

BURN TO DEATH AS LIGHTNING BOLT SETS HOUSE ON FIRE

Chippewa Falls, Wis. — An elderly couple and their daughter burned to death today as fire, caused by lightning, destroyed their home.

The dead were A. P. Hagen, 80; Mrs. A. P. Hagen, 80, and Miss Gunda Hagen, 45. Firemen theorized that the occupants were stunned by the bolt and as a result were unable to escape from the blazing dwelling.

FREE INSTALLATION

Edmonton, Aug. 9 — Free installation of electric ranges in Edmonton homes during the next six months was favored by city council last night as an experiment designed to boost consumption of electric power in off-peak periods. The cost will be borne equally by the city, the wholesaler and retailer. —Lethbridge Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Anderson of Tyrell's Lake were Raymond visitors Wednesday.

LET THEM PASS

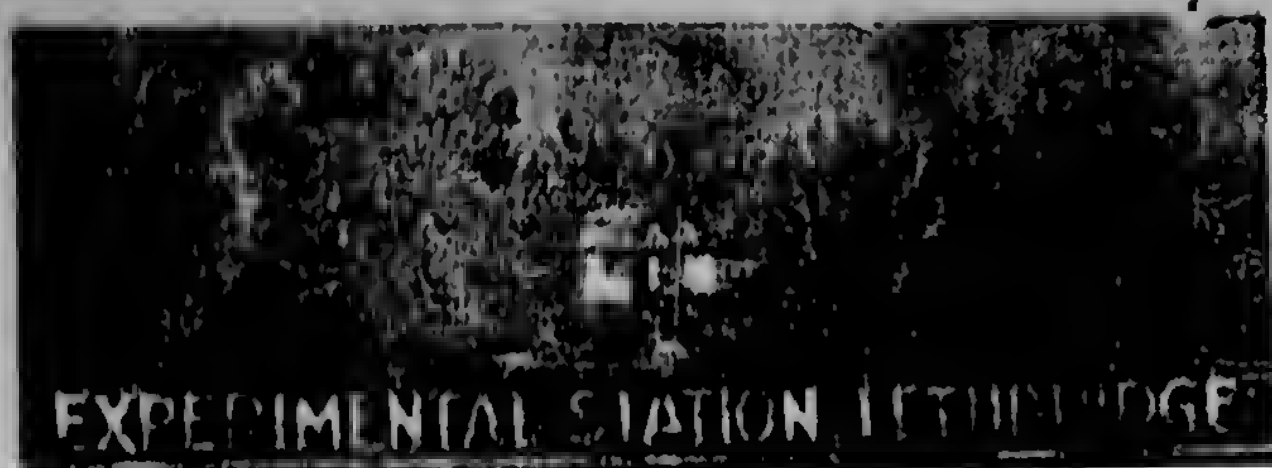

"When a car is passing you, take your foot off the gas. That doubles his speed and get him past quicker."

This suggestion was made in a letter to the editor of the Chico Record and it appealed to him to make the following comment, which is well worth passing on.

"Many of the worst accidents have come from drivers making it harder for cars behind to pass them, instead of making it easier."

Often the situation develops into a race, with both cars going faster and faster. Then tragedy is imminent as a turn, the approach of a steep hill ahead—and possibly cars coming from behind.

It used to be regarded in the early days of motoring, as legitimate sport to try and beat the other car. That notion has largely vanished, since almost every car now will go faster than anybody has any business going and everybody knows it. If the fellow behind is a speed fiend, the sooner he passes the better for you.—Ex.

WEEKLY LETTER

HONEY EXTRACTION

The beekeeper at the Lethbridge Experimental Station is busily engaged at present in the process of extracting honey from the hives in the apiary. The writer found the process very instructive and has decided to pass on to the readers of this letter some of the information received from the beekeeper.

Do not remove honey from the hives until it is at least three parts capped over. Leave the bees enough to carry them through the fall. Now is the time to prepare colonies for winter feeding.

The use of the wood and wire bee escape board fitted with two 2-way bee escapes is the easiest way of clearing the honey supers of bees. If no escape boards are available, shake or brush the bees from the combs early in the morning. Escapes should be placed early in the morning and supers cleared of bees by next afternoon—giving the bees one full day. See that the springs of the bee escapes are set to allow the passage of one bee through them but not wide enough for return. After placing the escape boards, see that no cracks or openings exist in the supers above them. To prevent robbing, remove the supers immediately to the honey house. Leave no comb or honey exposed at any time.

Extract the honey as soon as possible in a warm building. Keep uncapping knife hot; this facilitates uncapping and prevents tearing of the combs. A steam-heated knife is the best. To prevent combs breaking in the extractor, run the extractor slowly at first until one-half of the honey is removed from one side of the combs, reverse the combs, increase the speed and remove all the honey from that side; again reverse the combs and extract the remaining honey from the first side. If the honey house is not absolutely bee proof, stack the supers with one hive cover below and another above each pile. To clarify the honey, strain it through two thicknesses of fine cheesecloth; this will remove particles of wax, etc. This extracted honey should be allowed to settle for 24 hours so that the remaining particles of foreign material will come to the surface where it can be easily skimmed off. Fill pails before granulation starts and close them.

It is a good plan to save a number of well-filled combs for the bees next spring. The honey in these combs for spring use need not be of the best quality.

GRAIN MEN WISH GOVERNMENT ABLE TO FIX HIGHER PRICE

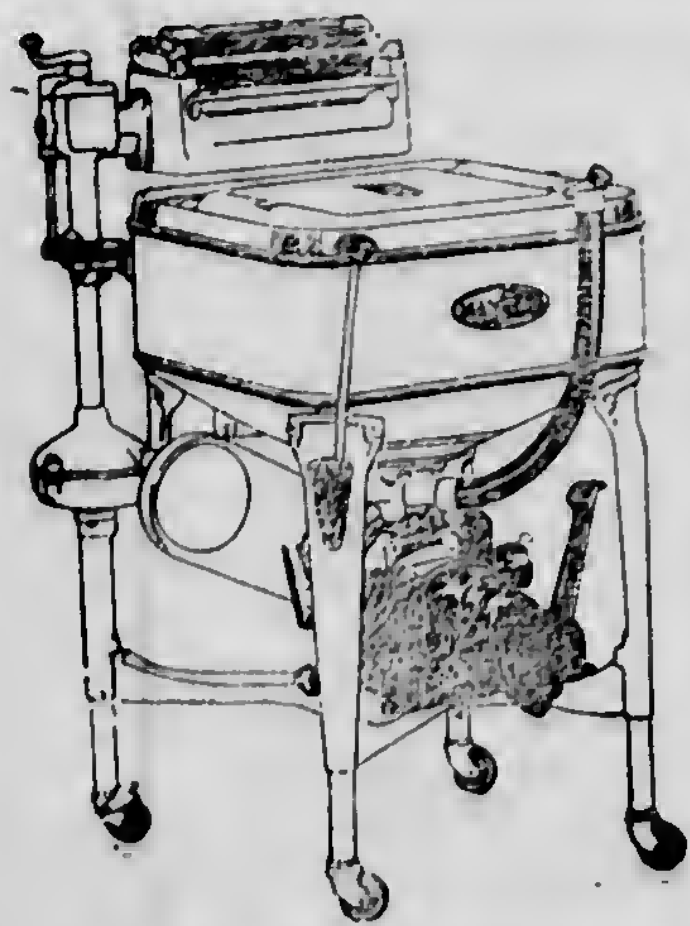

Policy of aiding agriculture in times of adversity is approved

In an interview relating to the guaranteed minimum price of 80 cents for wheat announced by the Dominion Government C. E. Hayles, President of the North West Grain Dealers' Association, said:

"The members of the North-West Grain Dealers' Association are pleased to note that the Dominion Government has recognized the principle that, in the face of adverse international and national conditions, the economic position of the Western farmer is entitled to federal support, even at the risk of loss to the Dominion Treasury.

We wish however, that the Dominion Government had been able to guarantee a higher price.

NEWS NOTES

Don't forget the Swimming Regala on Wednesday next week. Fun for everyone.

Miss Ruth Watson was in charge at the Town office the first of the week while Secretary Jones was in Brandon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Judd of Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Law of Wrentham and Mr. and Mrs. Harry James of Magrath were visitors at Waterton Park over the week-end.

When business is so bad it is not worth advertising, then it should be advertised for sale. For results try the columns of the Recorder.

Ehlert and son have been busy this past week building a cement cellar for D. A. Bennett at his home here.

Improvements are constantly being made at the local Swimming Pool. This week, the water has been put in the dressing rooms in preparation for showers and some sanitary additions made.

C. Jensen, Magrath, a director of the Alberta Wheat Pool was the guest speaker at the Rotary meeting last Monday night, speaking on the wheat market. His talk was greatly enjoyed by the Rotarians present.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brewerton and Mr. and Mrs. Warren L. Jones left early Saturday morning for Brandon, Manitoba, where the gentlemen attended the Conference of Rotary Presidents and Secretaries on Monday and Tuesday.

SHOULD WE GIVE MONEY TO BEGGARS

At this time of the year, most towns are besieged with numbers of transients in search of harvest jobs, and Drumheller does not escape them. Usually a great many more men drift into localities than can be absorbed by the agricultural industry, and they begin to beg for a livelihood.

While these men are not usually in the category of professional beggars, the fact that they have started to beg, may induce them to become such, and one often wonders, that if by contributing to these fellows he is just helping them along to that stage.

A story recently came to light in The Forum which showed that many of the professional beggars receive as much as fifty dollars per day in "takings." It is estimated that in the city of New York fifty thousand dollars per day is the beggars' haul. Most of this is picked up by individuals operating on their own, but signs of syndicated management appear here and there.

In two recent arrests, one man turned out to be a pan-handling overlord, driving his beggars to "work" every morning and picking them up each night. He would collect their money, feed and lodge them—and to keep up their morale he supplied them with cheap liquor. The other case was that of a twenty-two-year-old beggar, who was found to own a home in Riverside, Rhode Island, and who had a bank balance of $6,800. He had received as much as sixty-five dollars in one day's begging.—Drumheller Mail.

"And how did you get that name?"

"My father says I came on the first of the month with the rest of the bills, sir."

The Fight Goes On

Western farmers must persist in their fight for a greater degree of price security in the marketing of their main product—WHEAT.

To continue the fight for just and equitable treatment a strong concentration of effort is required.

The natural focal point for such an effort is the WHEAT POOL movement.

THE BIG DEPARTMENT STORE

BRIGHTER POST OFFICES

It is related of the famous actor, Sir Henry Irving, that he once went into a post office in Britain to buy a penny stamp to make the following concluding a large sheet of stamps. Irving pointed solemnly to the middle of it, and said "I'll have that one please."

He may not have intended the joke to convey a lesson but it did; for it emphasised the fact that, although it holds a monopoly, the British post office stands in nearly the same relation to a customer as an ordinary store. That is to say, the same amenities, the same consideration for his comfort, his feelings should be extended to him in the former than he gets in the latter.

But it was long before the post office took the lesson to heart; it remained gloomy, unattractive and devoid of the chairs and tables that would have added so much to the comfort, and have facilitated the business of its clientele; post offices were crosses hard to be home; pencils were chains of office, but knew not how to make their mark; and against all in vocation in these matters the Royal Mail was proof.

The last few years however have seen a great improvement; and in a speech, which he made recently, Sir Walter Womersley, Assistant Postmaster General, drew attention to this with pardonable pride. He pointed out that a "Brighter Post Office" campaign has resulted in comfortably furnished offices supplied with pleasant inquiry bureaus, and that even the pens may reasonably be described now as "deluxe."

Then there was the little boy whose mother sent him for the book "You Can't Have Everything."
